The automobile reshaped our conceptions of space, revolutionizing the ways we perceive the urban environment and radically transforming the architecture of the city. This colloquium explores car travel as a new episteme. Iain Borden (The Bartlett School of Architecture, UCL), Jae Emerling (College of Arts and Architecture, University of North Carolina), and Martino Stierli (Department of Architecture and Design, MoMA) will share new historical and theoretical perspectives for tackling the automobile vision of architects and urban designers. The colloquium is open to the public. Anyone can participate via the link:
